This glossary of terms is closely based upon the SCAA Glossary of Terms for Religious Education (1994) which was drawn up in consultation with members of the faith communities concerned.
Christianity Glossary

Unlike the other five world faiths included in this glossary, most of the terms given below are in English and will be familiar to many people. The historic languages of the Christian scriptures are Hebrew, Greek and Latin. The Old Testament was written largely in Hebrew, with some texts in Aramaic and Greek (Apocrypha). The whole of the Old Testament was translated into Greek, although many words and passages have their origin in Aramaic. Latin became increasingly the language of the Western Church from the 5th century AD when the Bible was translated into Latin.

Islam Glossary

The Qur'an was revealed in Arabic. Therefore Arabic is the language of Islam, Islamic worship, theology, ethics and jurisprudence. Islam is inextricably linked with the Arabic language despite the variety of languages spoken by the believers.

For British teachers and pupils who have not encountered Islamic terms, this transliteration is a simplified version of that used by contemporary scholars. An apostrophe is used to indicate a pause. The reader will note that the words salah and zakah end in 'h' when they appear alone. When part of a phrase, these words are written with a 't' at the end, for example, Salat-ul-Zuhur, Zakat-ul-Fitr.

Sikhism Glossary

Sikh terms are drawn from the Punjabi language, and the versions below are based upon that language. Many of these terms will also be found in books on Hinduism and Buddhism but with somewhat different meanings. As with all transliterations, there are problems which are difficult to resolve. This is particularly true when moving from the Gurmukhi script which has an alphabet of 35 letters, to the Roman alphabet which has only 26 letters. Names of persons and places are only included in this list if variant forms are commonly used.

Humanism Glossary

Humanism is a major ethical non-theistic tradition. This glossary is based on one provided by the British Humanist Association (www.humanism.org.uk)

Agnosticism
Open-mindedness or genuine doubt as to the truth of claims made for the reality or existence of God or any supernatural domain. - Belief or assertion that God or gods lack convincing evidence and arguments. The word is formed from “a” (“without”) and “gnosis” (“knowledge”).

Atheism
Denial of the existence of God or gods. The word is formed from “a” (“without”) and “theos” (“deity, god”).

Ethics
Moral rules and principles to govern human conduct. Some religions see them as influenced by divine interventions; humanists consider them to be constructed solely by people working together in a society.

Faith
1. Frequently used to mean the same as religion.
2. Trust.

God
In some religions, the cause and support of all that is and the source of morality. Usually regarded as taking a direct interest in individuals in this life and judging them after death. Buddhism, Confucianism, Taoism, Humanism and some Christians do not use the concept.

Humanism
A view of life, and a way of life, based solely on our understanding of the natural world, human feelings, intelligence and creativity and on a personal commitment to valuing and cooperating with one another as fellow human beings.

Naturalistic
A world view that does not use any notion of the divine or supernatural. Humanism is founded on a naturalistic world view, rather than a supernatural view: thus evolution provides an account of how we come to be as we are biologically and socially, while meaning and purpose are the creations of our shared imagination, feeling and storytelling.

Religion
A serious, examined way of life based on a set of beliefs and practices with one or more of the following dimensions: mythical, doctrinal, spiritual, ethical, ritual, social, symbolic, belief in a god, gods or the supernatural. Most humanists would say that humanism is not a religion but this is debatable on the basis of the definition above. Confucianism, Taoism and major strands of Buddhism and Jainism do not involve a god or gods, and there are non-theistic strands in Christianity and Hinduism.
Science
The enterprise of creating and organising human understanding of the natural world, including humanity, through open enquiry, imaginative theory devising, invited challenge and testing against evidence.

Secular
This word can be used in two different ways:
1. Excluding and rejecting religion.
2. A civil society in which government and its services are structured independently of religion organisations, which protects freedom of belief as it does other freedoms, and treats people equally.

Spiritual
The highest expression and activity of the human person deriving from whatever source. “The potential for spiritual development is open to everyone and is not confined to the development of religious beliefs or conversion to a particular faith.” (1)

Spirituality
“Spirituality refers to the inner nature of human beings often expressed in the search for meaning and purpose in life; the sense of personal value and values; reflections on the challenges life brings; and a sense of mystery and awe at the universe.” (2)

Supernatural
1. “Other-worldly” reality radically different from ordinary experience;
2. From beyond the world as we know it;
3. Hidden or occult.
See also Naturalistic

Theistic
Involving a god or gods.

Ultimate Questions
Highest or deepest, or most searching and far-reaching, questions of meaning in life and death. (1) Some aspects of Religious Education are concerned with responses to Ultimate Questions. Many of the responses to these questions are theistic (e.g. Christianity, Islam). Others are non-theistic (e.g. Buddhism, Jainism, Confucianism, Taoism, Humanism.)
