Title: Family Ties: How and why do Hindus celebrate Raksha Bandhan?

Year Group: 1/2
The Agreed Syllabus for Religious Education in Northamptonshire

Non-Statutory Exemplification – School Selected Unit

Title: Family Ties: How and why do Hindus celebrate Raksha Bandhan?
Year Group: 1/2

About this unit:
This unit enables pupils to begin to explore the idea of celebration, by first considering what a celebration involves before going on to find out about the customs and rituals associated with the Hindu celebration of Raksha Bandhan.

The focus is on how people’s beliefs are expressed in celebrations and the importance of family in religions. Pupils will engage in activities that will allow them to begin to understand why celebrating is important to people, particularly in this case to Hindus. They will also be encouraged to think for themselves about questions to do with the importance of different people in their family and how they show their appreciation of this importance.

Pupils are encouraged to consider what can be learned from the customs and rituals associated with the celebration of Raksha Bandhan, referring to their own experiences, beliefs and values.

Where this unit fits in:
This is a unit that can be selected by schools in addition to the mandatory units.
This unit will help teachers to implement the Northamptonshire Agreed Syllabus for Religious Education by providing them with well worked examples of teaching and learning about the theme of celebrations through a focus on the rituals and traditions associated with Raksha Bandhan. By focusing on the concepts of beliefs, tradition and belonging and examples of how beliefs are expressed through a celebration, this unit will help pupils to understand why celebrating is important to people’s lives.
This unit contributes to the continuity and progression of pupils’ learning by exploring a familiar theme of celebrations from the Foundation Stage in more depth and building upon any understanding of the Hindu faith gained through School Designed Units, assemblies, visitors or personal experience.
The unit anticipates a further study of Hinduism in KS2.

Estimated teaching time for this unit: 10 hours. It is recognised that this unit may provide more teaching ideas than a class will cover in 10 hours. Teachers are invited to plan their own use of some of the learning ideas below, ensuring depth of learning rather than trying to cover everything, and link with other curriculum areas as appropriate to maximise learning opportunities and experiences.

Key Fields of Enquiry addressed in this unit:

AT 1: Learning about Religion and Belief
- Beliefs, Values and Teaching
- Ways of Expressing Meaning
AT 2: Learning from Religion and Belief

- Questions of Meaning, Purpose and Truth

The core RE concepts that the unit develops are:
Belief: (Hindus believe that the family plays an important role in their lives. Starting and maintaining a family is considered a key religious duty);
Tradition: (Taking part in celebrations and festivals is important in teaching and maintaining the beliefs of a religion);
Identity: (Belonging to a group with a set of beliefs and traditions gives people a sense of belonging and purpose).

Attitudes Focus
This unit will help pupils to explore attitudes of:
- Self awareness by talking about celebrations and traditions in their own family;
- Open mindedness by engaging in positive discussion and debate about the importance of celebrations and the place they have in people’s lives.

The unit will provide these opportunities for pupils:
- To consider the concepts of celebration, tradition, identity and belonging;
- To develop their skills of interpretation and empathy;
- To think about their own experiences and views in relation to questions of belonging and traditions;
- Experiences and opportunities provided by this unit include cooking and tasting, role play, drama, creative art, story telling, thinking skills, and use of ICT.

Background information for the teacher:
Raksha Bandhan (protection tying) is a Hindu festival that usually occurs in August.

It is a time when sisters tie a rakhi around their brother’s right wrist to symbolise the bond between them. In return, the brother will give his sister a gift, usually money. The rakhi itself might be as simple as a red thread, but more often it will be ornate with a round decoration made of tinsel, plastic and beads attached to the thread.

A legend associated with Raksha Bandhan tells of when King Bali drove Indra, King of Heaven, from his home. Sacha, the wife of Indra, asked Vishnu (God) to help her to regain her husband’s kingdom and to keep him safe. Vishnu gave her an amulet to tie around Indra’s right wrist before he fought Bali. Indra had great faith in the protection of Vishnu’s amulet and managed to defeat Bali and regain his kingdom.

Another story that is sometimes told tells of a king who was about to invade a queen’s territory. Hearing of this, the queen sent him a rakhi, which suggested that, rather than attacking her he should protect her as a brother. He did not invade.

In Britain, the custom of sisters giving their brothers a rakhi is keenly followed and rakhis are sometimes posted. Rakhis and gifts might also be exchanged between male and female cousins. In Hinduism, knots symbolise the strength of family relationships. The traditional Hindu family is the joint or extended family, which includes several generations within one home, providing emotional, moral, physical, religious and financial support and security to all the members of the family. In Britain and urbanised areas of India, the more nuclear, westernised, form of the family is becoming more common, but most families tend to buy houses in the same area so the family can stay together and maintain the traditional forms of support.
Vocabulary & Concepts

In this unit, pupils will have an opportunity to use words and phrases related to:

Contributions to spiritual, moral, social and cultural development of pupils:

- Opportunities for spiritual development come from gaining an understanding of the role of the family in giving meaning and purpose to the lives of many people;
- Opportunities for cultural development come from developing a respect for the beliefs and traditions of the Hindu faith and culture.
EXPECTATIONS: At the end of this unit….

ASSESSMENT SUGGESTIONS

A formal assessment of each pupil is neither required nor desirable for every RE unit. Continuing use of Assessment for Learning methods is best.

Teachers can assess this work by setting a learning task towards the end of the unit. The task aims to elicit engaged and reflective responses to the material studied throughout the unit, across the ability range.

Pupils could create a page for a class zigzag book or a piece of work to share in assembly describing the how, why, what, etc about Raksha Bandhan and talk about or describe how it impacts on the lives of Hindus.

Higher attaining pupils: To extend this work, ask pupils to research and compare how Raksha Bandhan is celebrated in England and India.

<td>Set up a ‘celebration’ for the class. (Perhaps they have achieved something which can be celebrated.) Have a cake or treats, special activities, music etc. Ask the pupils how they felt, why celebrating is important etc. Idea shower times that the pupils celebrate, e.g. birthdays, weddings, birth of baby, Mother’s Day, passing a test, scoring a goal etc. What other celebrations do they know about? Is it important to celebrate special events? How do you celebrate in your family? Compare different ways of celebrating. Discuss the feelings involved. Have different kinds of Indian sweets (including Barfi) for the children to try. (Be wary of allergies!) Make simple Barfi, or other sweets, to take home to share. Explain that the symbolism of sweet foods in festivals is usually a hope/wish for sweet and happy times to the people eating them or to make the people 'sweet!' (Compare with other traditions such as Chinese New Year and the Jewish festival of Rosh Hashanah.) Explain that Barfi and other sweets are one of the gifts given to boys by their sisters in Hindu families during the festival of Raksha Bandhan. The symbolism is to make the boy sweet!</td>

| To know the key features of the Rakhi tying ceremony. To know that Hindus consider all relatives to be of great importance. | Look at a picture of a girl tying a Rakhi around her brother’s wrist. Ask the pupils in groups, to consider:
- What can they see happening?
- What makes them think it is a special celebration?
- What do they find interesting/puzzling?
Encourage them to look at special clothes, expressions etc. Feed back. Explain that 'Raksha' (meaning 'protection') ‘Bandhan’ (meaning ‘to tie’) takes place in July / August time each year. It is celebrated by Hindu children and adults. For those who have no brothers, cousins are just as important. They are like brothers in the extended family. Other male relatives have similar status. The tying of the Rakhi is symbolic of the love between brothers and sisters and of the staying together, protecting each other. Families are extremely important in Hinduism. It is a religious duty to marry and have children and to maintain a happy marriage and family life. Rakhis are made from cotton threads, silk and tinsel, usually with a design in the centre. Look at a range of Rakhis and make Rakhis to give to a member of the family. Write a poem or thank you card to give with the Rakhi, expressing the importance of that person. Draw comparisons of the symbolism with friendship bracelets, wedding rings, Sikh wedding scarf etc. Discuss how it feels to receive gifts and how Hindus might feel to receive the Rakhis. | I can talk about some of the ways in which Hindus celebrate Raksha Bandhan. (AT1 L1) I can use religious words and phrases to identify some of the key features of Raksha Bandhan. (AT1 L2) I can make links between symbolic objects associated with Raksha Bandhan and other celebrations. (AT1 L3) I can talk about what is of value and concern to me. (AT2 L1) I can ask, and respond sensitively to, questions about my own and others’ feelings and experiences. (AT2 L2) | For example, Nelson Thornes “Living Religions” Hinduism pack or use Internet to search for images. |
Explore the ‘Tying the Rakhi’ ceremony. This normally takes place on the morning of the festival. Focus on the anointing with Kum-Kum paste and rice, the tying of the Rakhi, the eating of barfi and giving of a present to the sister from her brother.

This would be best demonstrated by Hindus, giving the pupils a chance to experience cultural diversity at first hand. Digital photography could be taken. If this is not possible, use videos/ DVDs, pictures etc.

Explain that if brothers or cousins live far away or in another country, rakhis will be sent by post with a card in order to maintain family links.

Ask the girls to imagine that they have got to send a Rakhi to a brother / cousin who is far away. Design and make a card. What design would be appropriate? Write a poem or letter to go inside the card. What should they include?

The boys could imagine that they have received a Rakhi and are sending a Raksha Bandhan card as a thank you and sending a suitable present to their sister / cousin. Design and make the card and possibly the gift (a bookmark or similar.) Consider what might be written in the card. What illustrations would be appropriate?

Higher attaining pupils could be given help with a research task to compare the celebration of Raksha Bandhan in England with India. ICT could be used.
